But we learn a very interesting thing about him from a few quotes from some early Church Fathers[2]:. About Contact. The document itself does not claim to have been authored by Judas it is, rather, a gospel about Judas and is known to date to at least AD.

Also, the time is too short for legends to develop. Of course the Gospel document

The following copier, thinking When Were our Gospels Written?

the sentence he found in the margin had been left out of the passage by his predecessor, thought it necessary to include the margin notes in the text. For this reason, the Gospel of Matthew, at least in a very basic form in Aramaic, is considered the first Gospel and placed first in the New Testament, although the Gospel of Mark is probably the first in a completed form. Father Kannengiesser, in his study on the Resurrection, arrives at the conclusion that none of the New Testament authors, save Paul, can claim to have been eyewitnesses to Jesus's Resurrection.
