Cleveland Clinic formed the Practice Innovation and Professional Fulfillment Office to create and sustain an environment that allows clinicians and scientists to thrive through barrier removal, culture change, and support for personal well-being. Faulty physician decision making has been blamed for everything from medical errors to excessive procedure use and wasteful spending.

This type of patient may benefit from obtaining information on the Web after treatment. For example, one study 11 found that patients experiencing depression were more likely to receive an off-label antidepressant to treat their insomnia.
